Application of Deductibles

1. If two or more Deductible amounts in this Policy apply to an "occurrence" the Deductibles shall be applied separately but the cumulative deductions so calculated shall not exceed the largest Deductible applicable. For the purposes of this provision, the total amount of the deductibles calculated on "units of insurance" for any one occurrence shall be considered a single deductible.
2. "Time Element" values shall not be included in the calculation of the "occurrence" Deductible at any "location" for which no "Time Element" claim is made. Property damage values shall not be included in the calculation of the "occurrence" Deductible at any "location" for which no property damage claim is made.
3. Should the amount of loss payable under the Insured's "primary policy" or by local, state or governmental funding organizations exceed the largest applicable Deductible of this Policy, then no Deductible shall apply hereunder. However, if the amount to be paid under the Insured's "primary policy" or by local, state or governmental funding organizations is less than the largest applicable Deductible of this Policy, then the amount to be deducted hereunder shall not exceed the difference between the amount to be paid under the Insured's "primary policy" or by local, state or governmental funding organizations and the largest applicable Deductible of this Policy.
4. The following shall be considered a separate "unit of insurance":
